

Princess Charming Parent Pack

Hello from Spun Glass Theatre!

Today, we visited your child's school, club or community group, or you visited us at your local theatre.

Princess Charming is a performance for children aged 7-11 which explores gender stereotyping in a playful, fun and celebratory way.

We all know it is crucially important for children to break free of gender stereotyping so they can live life to the full and be confident in their role in our modern day society.

Princess Charming helps children to understand that boys and girls don't necessarily have to behave in stereotypical ways.

We have a list of suggested websites which you may wish to visit to help you understand what your child has taken part in today, and, if you like, to kick-start some discussions about gender stereotypes.

Kidscape have some fantastic video resources and is a great first point of call if your child talks about experiences of bullying.

<https://www.kidscape.org.uk/advice/advice-for-parents-and-carers/>

The Ben Cohen Stand Up Foundation focuses on LGBT+ anti-bullying campaigns and also has a wealth of information on supportive organisations

<http://www.standupfoundation-uk.org/resources/>

Our partner Bullies Out has a dedicated resource page for parents, it's really detailed and can help you make a real difference for your child.

<https://bulliesout.com/need-support/parents/>

It was a pleasure to perform for your child and we hope that 'Princess Charming' can spark some really positive conversations.

The Spun Glass Theatre team

www.spunglasstheatre.com

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND